

New Year Postcards 年賀状

In Japan, everyone sends New Year's Postcards called nengajo to their family and friends for New Year's. These are usually written before the New Year so they will arrive just after New Year's Day.

Around the end of each year, you will see a lot of nengajo for sale for the coming new year with all kinds of beautiful designs. The front of the postcard has a New Year's greeting, a space for a personal message as well as a seasonal design or that year's zodiac animal. The back is normally for the address only.

Activity: Write your own Nengajo!

Why not try to write your own New Year's message this year on a nengajo? You can use one of the templates provided or create your own!
